Representative Glass had to go to Charlottesville to-day to attend a session of the Board of Visitors of the University of which body he is a member. He said he did not know the object of the meeting. Possibly a president might be chosen at this meeting, but he did not think it likely. The impression made by Mr. Glass upon me was that he was opposed to longer postponement of an election. An alumuns of the University said last night that he had reason to believe that if Dr. McBryde, president of the Polytechin Institute, would signify his willingness to accept the presidency of the University he would be elected.

WASHINGTON, D. C., November 10.—
The House was in session less than half an hour to-day, an early adjournment being taken out of respect to the memory of two deceased members. The Pres dent's message was read and referred to the Committee on Ways and Means, the membership of which is yet to be announced. The message also was ordered printed. Aside from making provision for the payment of mileage of members, no further business was transacted. The Speaker announced the following committees:
Rules—The Speaker, Dalzell (Pennsylvania), Grosvenor (Ohio), Williams (Mississippi), Dearmond (Missouri).
Mileage—Reeder (Kansas), Jackson (Maryland), Flack (New York), Lewis (Georgia), Butler (Missouri).
The first three on each committee are Republicans and the last two Democrat. The House adjourned until to-morrow.

PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE

Urges Importance of Reciprocity With Cuba.

With Cuba.

(By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 10.—The President's message to the extraordinary session of Congress was read in both houses of Congress to-day, it is a short paper, and is devoted exclusively to the subject of the reciprocity treaty with Cuba. The message in full follows:

To the Smate and House of Representatives:

Cuba. The message in full follows:
To the Senate and House of Representatives:

I have convened the Congress that it may consider the legislation necessary to put into operation the commercial treaty with Cuba, which was ratified by the Senate at its last session, and, subsequently, by the Cuban Government. I deem such legislation demanded not only by our interest, but by our honor. We cannot, with propriety, ahandon the course upon which we have so wisely embarked. When the acceptance of the Flatt amendment was required from Cuba by the action of the Congress of the United States, this government thereby definitely committed itself to the policy of treating Cuba as occupying a unique position as regards this country. It was provided that when the island became a free and independent republic she should stand in such close relations with us as in certain respects to come within our system of international colity; and it necessarily followed that she must also, to a certain degree, become included within the lines of our economic policy. Situated as Cuba is, it would not be possible for this country to permit the strategic abuse of the island by any foreign military power. It is for this reason that certain limitations have been imposed, upon her financial policy and that naval stations have been conceded by her to the United States. The mesotiations as to the details of these naval stations are on the eve of completion. They are so situated as to prevent any idea that there is the intention ever to use them against Cuba or otherwise than for the protection of Cuba from the sessatures of oreign foreign financial in the results of the sand for the better safeguarding of American interests in the waters south of us.

Military and Economic.

Military and Economic.

These interests have been largely increased by the consequences of the war with Spair, and will be still further increased by the building of the isthmian canal. They are both military and economic. The granting to us by Cuba of the and the still the still mic. The granting to us by Cuba of trenaval stations above alluded to is of the utmost importance from a military standpoint, and is proof of the good faith with which Cuba is treating us. Cuba has made great progress since her independence was established. She has advanced steadily in every way. She already stands high among her sister republics of the new world. She is loyally observing her obligations to us; and she is entitled to like treatment by us.

The trenty submitted to you for approval secures to the United States economic advantages as great as those given to Cuba. Not an American interest is secrificed. By the treaty, a large Cuban market is secured to our producers. It is a market which lies at our doors, which is already large, which is capable of great expans on, and which is especially important to the development of our export trade. It would be indeed short-signited for us to refuse to take advantage of such an opportunity, and to force Cuba into making arrangements with other countries to our disadvantage. This resistants. Stands Alone.

This reciprocity treity stands by itself. It is demanded on considerations of broad national policy, as well as by our economic interest. It will do harm to no industry. It will benefit many industries. It is in the interest of our people as a whole, both because of its importance from the broad standpoint of international policy and because economically it intimately concerns us to develop and secure the rich Cuban market for our farmers, artisant; merchants and manufacturers. Finally, it is desirable as a guaranty of the good faith of our nation toward her young sister republic to the south, whose welfare must ever be closely bound with ours. We gave her liberty. We are knit to her by the memories of the blood and the courage of our soldiers who fought for her in war; by the memories of the wisdom and irregrity of our administrators who served her in peace and who started her owell on the difficult path of self-government. We must help her onward and upward; and in helping her we shall help ourselves.

The foregoing considerations caused the negotiations of the treaty with Cuba and its ratification by the Senate. They now, with equal force, support the legislation by the Congrest which by the terms of the treaty, is necessary to render it operative. A failure to enact such legislation would come perflously near a repudiation of the pledged faith of the ration.

BOSTON, MASS. Nov. 10.—Join Mitchell, president of the United Mine Workers of America, presided for a time this afternoon at the convention of the American Federation of Labor, and he received a greeting from the delegates which was as sincere and spontaneous as it was enthusiastic. Cheer after cheer resounded through Fancull Hall, the place of meeting, both from delegate and spectator.

The report of the Executive Council, review of what the board had considered during the year, occupied the greater part of the forenoon session. The report decried the jurisdiction disputes between affiliated unions. It contained all the correspondence with President Roosevelt in the Miller case at Washington, but refrained from all comment upon the matter. At the afternoon session the report of the committee on credentials was accepted.

Isabella Wieserski Kwilecki, charged with presenting a false heir to an estate at Wroblewo, a woman testified that two women several years ago came to Cra-crow and opened communications with her crow and opened communications with her for the purpose of getting an infant boy, which, one of the women said, was for her daughter who was a countess. She thought immediately of Cocolia Myer and har relations with the Austrian captain, who has figured in the case since the women demanded that the ohild be of good blood. After delivering the Meyer girl, the women bought the child for a hundred guiden.

Cecella Meyer testified to selling her second son for a hundred guiden.

The women, who were seeking for a male child, thought Cecella's boy was already too big, but they agreed that he would serve. Later the Meyer giri regretted the loss of the boy, and went to former Judge Fillmoswiki to ask for his assistance in recovering the child, but she fasted to get the boy. Judge Fillmoswiki, in his testimony, substantiated this story.

Booker Washington Speaks.

Washington Nov. 10.—Booker T.
Washington to-day spoke at the conference of negro leaders on the race problem. Despite the fact that the special problems and lynching were before the conference for discussion, he carefully avoided them, devoting his time to general advice to the conference.

He referred to the need for harmony among organizations and repeated that the National Sociological Society had a work to do which no other organization could perform.
